

© Shutterstock.com/imagdb.com

BLOW THE WHISTLE

on cruelty to animals in classrooms and laboratories.

- ▶ We will keep your information confidential.
- ▶ Your evidence can help animals.

Contact PETA today on +9122 40727382 or at Whistleblower@petaindia.org. PETA

CONTACT US if you have seen any of these possible violations:

- ▶ Use of animals for dissection or other classroom teaching purposes
- ▶ Animals who have been sickened or injured in experiments
- ▶ Animals in laboratories who are not receiving adequate veterinary care
- ▶ People who hit, screamed at or otherwise abused animals
- ▶ Animals who showed signs of distress (such as self-mutilation)
- ▶ Animals who are forced to live in small, filthy or dangerous cages (eg, with broken wires, etc)
- ▶ Animals who were given insufficient pain relief during or after painful procedures
- ▶ Animals who have gone without sufficient food or water
- ▶ Animals who were killed in painful ways (eg, mice whose heads were cut off with scissors, live animals who were placed in a freezer, etc)
- ▶ Animals who were used in experiments when non-animal alternatives were available
- ▶ Animals who were transported to a laboratory in an inhumane manner via truck, plane or ship

If you have seen any of these or any other inhumane conditions that you think may violate any guidelines, laws or regulations, please contact us – we will do everything we can to stop the abuse.

For information on PETA's success at working with whistleblowers to stop cruelty in laboratories and medical schools, please visit PETAIndia.com.

We will keep your information confidential. Contact us today on +9122 40727382 or at Whistleblower@petaindia.org.

Even if you're not in a position to blow the whistle on lab abuses, you can still help fight cruelty to animals every day. Visit PETAIndia.com for a free cruelty-free shopping guide and tips on buying personal-care products, cosmetics and other items that are not tested on animals.

PETA

People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals
PETAIndia.com